

Freeland to Headington

Cycling route

My commute starts in Freeland OX298AQ opposite the village hall and proceeds along Wroslyn Road and Cuckoo Lane towards the bike path running beside the A40. This section of road is relatively quiet but good bike lights are needed as the road has no streetlights.

On reaching the A40 junction proceed east towards Oxford passing over the River Evenlode at Cassington before arriving in Oxford at the Banbury Road roundabout (note: there are long-term roadworks at this junction but the temporary crossing is straightforward).

From here continue along the A40 bike path till it meets Meaden Hill opposite the new Mosaics development. Cycle up Meaden Hill and through the John Radcliffe hospital. Cross Headley Way at the lights and continue to the Headington campus via Jack Straw's Lane.
